WHERE THERE'S ICE, THERE'S A BOY . . .

Where there's ice, there's almost always a pack of red-nosed boys playing hockey. In the Okanagan, the frozen water is a rare commodity this winter, but Duck Lake, south of Winfield, is in playing shape. Here the game seems to spread around the entire lake, for no goal posts were in sight, and the youngsters were suspiciously eyeing another group skating in the distance. It's from these rough-and-tumble sessions that come some of the NHL's finest hockey players—in fact, one of these lads may be playing for Vancouver when that team wins its first Stanley Cup.—(Courier Photo)

Man Charged With Deception In British Kidnapping Case

LONDON (AP) — An 18-year-old waiter, charged with criminal deception in the case of the vanished wife of a British publisher, was ordered held without bail today. Police said they still were no nearer finding missing Mrs. Alex McKay.

William Alexander Peat was brought handcuffed into court at suburban Wimbledon, less than a mile from the home from which Australian-born Mrs. McKay disappeared Monday. Peat was charged with attempting to get £500 ($1,300) by deception from the missing woman's husband. No details of the case were disclosed and Peat was not required to enter a plea at the preliminary hearing. He was ordered held in custody until Jan. 12.

Peat was arrested at Wimbledon railway station Friday night as crowds of commuters hurried home from work.

Detectives say they still are treating Mrs. McKay's disappearance as a case of kidnapping. Mrs. McKay's husband has been under constant medical care since his wife disappeared. He started a new job last month as a director of two London newspapers. The Sunday News of the World and The Daily Sun, both published by fellow-Australian Robert Murdoch.

Three Of Warlike Allies Seek Freedom For Nazi Chief

BERLIN (AP) — The United States, Britain and France will ask again that the Kremlin agree to release Rudolf Hess, the onetime deputy of Adolf Hitler.

But the timing of such a move depends on a great deal on Hess's health, particularly his response to hospital treatment of a bleeding ulcer. If surgery becomes necessary, the request could come soon, regardless of political reasons for going slow.

The political factors include a Western dialogue with Moscow on Berlin tension, and other East-West contacts. But there is a growing international clamor to release Hess on humanitarian grounds.

When the request comes, it will be the 19th time the Western powers have asked the Soviet Union to let Hess go free.

Hess, now 75, has been in Berlin's Spandau war crimes prison since receiving a life sentence at Nuernberg in 1946. He was moved to the British military hospital Nov. 24.

All three, but particularly Britain, in whose West Berlin sector he is held, want Hess released so that the problem of his confinement can be eliminated. He is the sole remaining prisoner-of-war in the four-power prison. There is also the possibility that Hess could die in prison or the hospital, and "no one wants that," one source said. Russia is reluctant to free Hess because it wanted Hess sentenced to death at Nuernberg and it has not changed its mind. The Russians also say that when Hess flew to Britain in 1941, he sought peace so Hitler could have a free hand against Russia.

Canada Loses In Air Race

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — A Hawker Siddeley 125 jet trainer, owned by the Australian airline Qantas, Friday won the jet section of the London-to-Sydney air race by beating its only competitor, a Falcon fanjet entered by the Canadian Air Transport Command.

The Qantas aircraft completed the final Adelaide-to-Sydney leg in one hour 42 minutes, making a total flying time from London to Sydney of 31 hours 29 minutes and 30 seconds.

The Canadian jet took just over two hours longer, even though it landed in Sydney about 10 minutes ahead of its rival.

The final leg of the race began Friday but low-flying clouds, gale-force winds and heavy rain forced race officials to halt the competitors at Gatlin in southwestern New South Wales. It had originally been intended only as a refueling stop.

The Canadian and Qantas aircraft were the only entrants in a special jet class separate from the other 64 planes in the London-to-Sydney race. The jets were competing for a special trophy only and did not share in the cash prizes awarded to winners in other categories in the race.

Big Wage Claim Typical For B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — A 52-percent wage increase proposed to B.C. masonry and bricklaying contractors is typical of coming construction industry demands, a contractor spokesman said Friday.

H. A. Ormiston, chairman of the advisory committee to masonry contractors associations in the province, said the proposals put forward by Bricklayers and Masons Union Local 1 for a standard agreement in B.C. and The Yukon are typical of demands for more money and fringe benefits readied for submission this year.

WILDLIFE PEOPLE ANGRY

Gina Has 10 Tigers On Her Back

LONDON (AP) — Wildlife enthusiasts Saturday criticized Gina Lollobrigida, the fur-wearing movie star, because of her tiger skin maxicoat.

"It must have taken 10 tigers to make that tiger maxi and there are only 600 tigers left alive in the world," said an official of The Daily Mail's

World Wildlife Fund. "So one woman is wearing one 60th of the world's tiger population."

Miss Lollobrigida, in London with an assortment of fur coats for a television appearance, said her coat contained only about three skins and "the tigers in my coat were already dead."

"I don't kill anything," Miss Lollobrigida is not a young woman. Lady Muriel Dowling, head of an anti-killing league called Beauty Without Cruelty, told The Daily Mail. "I'm afraid by continuing to wear furs she shows her age."

The Italian star is 41 years old. Lady Dowling, said the younger generation is aware of the threat to wildlife but "older women can't get out of their systems the feeling that somehow a fur makes them important."

Miss Lollobrigida suggested the wildlife people leave her alone and said: "Might as well stop killing chickens for meat."

Daring Raiders Seize Radar Set From Egyptians

BRITISH LORD POUNDS BEAT

LONDON (AP) — Britain got its first titled policeman Friday. Lord Strathnaver, 22-year-old heir to a 90-room castle and one of the largest estates in Scotland, is going to pound a beat.

The 6-foot-3 judo expert and Oxford University graduate finished 13 weeks at Scotland Yard's training college, put on a uniform and became Constable Alistair Sutherland.

"It's a useful job," said the son of the Countess of Sutherland, whose family motto is Without Fear.

Lord Strathnaver expects to spend about two years pounding a London beat on the bottom rung of the ladder that leads to becoming a Scotland Yard officer.

Excited Israelis Study Secrets Of Russian-Built Station

TEL AVIV (CP) — Excited weapons experts today were examining an entire radar installation which Israeli commandos stole from Egypt and flew back to Israel sources disclosed today.

The Soviet-built radar station, seized from an Egyptian base on the Gulf of Suez near Ras Ghareb on Dec. 26, weighed seven tons and was reported to have cost $1,000,000.

Capture of the brand-new equipment was a well-known secret here but details were squashed by military security. Only after the story was first published abroad did military censorship relax restrictions.

No official announcement has been made on the dazzling capture but word of the feat has spread quickly through Israel. While research on the radar station was reported being carried out at the Weizmann Institute of Science 13 miles south of here, new fighting flared today on the Israeli-Lebanese border.

21 ARABS CAPTURED

The Israeli military command said an Israeli task force had penetrated inside Lebanon, blowing up a guard post and returning with 21 Arab captives.

The 21-hour raid was in retaliation for what the Israelis said were a number of "aggressive" incidents on the border, including the kidnapping of an Israeli night watchman by Arab commandos on New Year's Day.

Copters Carry Off Loot

Sources here said today the radar station was taken by commandos who surprised a small garrison at Ras Ghareb on the west coast of the Gulf of Suez about 125 miles south of Suez Town. The raid was carried out with air cover, according to military sources at the time.

Israeli jets struck at military targets in the area while the commandos slowly crawled toward the station. An Israeli military correspondent describing the action said the sentries of the Egyptian posts started firing only when the raiders had moved in close.

During the raid the Israelis captured four Egyptians and inflicted "several casualties" on its defenders, the sources said.

After the Israelis had located the radar station, they called in a y-y-duty helicopters and began dismantling the equipment with acetylene torches.

After the raiders returned to the Israeli-held Sinai, the chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Haim Bar-Leve, told them:

"What you did was so complicated and involved, and carried out with such precision despite many obstacles, that it seems like something from a film world rather than from the world of reality."

British Flu Toll Rises To 702

LONDON (AP) — Britain's health ministry said today that a flu epidemic which killed 702 persons throughout the country last week may be slackening off, but it warned that the virus is unpredictable.

The ministry said that aside from the flu deaths, 1,677 patients have died from pneumonia since the flu epidemic began last month and another 1,331 have died from bronchitis.

London's emergency bed service reported that 282 flu patients were booked into city hospitals Friday, most of them having difficulty breathing. Hospitals warned that they faced a shortage of blood because the flu had kept donors away.

Jet Hijackers Have Troubles Keeping Plane On Cuba Flight

PANAMA CITY (CP) — A Brazilian airliner hijacked by five revolutionaries landed in Panama today on its way to Cuba. The plane came from Lima, Peru, where it had remained on the ground for 27 hours with mechanical trouble. The hijackers, who said they wanted to escort to Havana two small daughters of a comrade jailed in Brazil, kept control of the plane the entire time it was grounded in the Peruvian capital. Police made no effort to interfere.

The plan of the hijackers—an attractive young woman and four men—was to have the aircraft refueled in Panama and then resume the flight to Cuba.

While in Lima, the hijackers remained inside the plane, keeping the 16 passengers and crew of seven under guard with pistols while the heat inside the twin-engine Caravelle jet was described as suffocating.

Waiting outside were officials and police, who surrounded the plane to keep away journalists and anyone who might upset the hijackers.

The Brazilians took over the plane Thursday night just after it left Montevideo, Uruguay, on a flight to Rio de Janeiro.

It landed at Buenos Aires, where the hijackers allowed an elderly couple to leave after the woman fainted, and at Antofagasta, Chile, for refueling. The two engines did not start and Lima's Jorge Chavez Airport did not have the correct electrical equipment to charge the Caravelle's batteries.

So, while arrangements were made for generators to be brought to Lima to do the job, the long wait began.

The hijackers were identified as Jaime Alan Luce, Aihos Mario Costa e Silva, Claudio Galeno Magalhães Linhares, Luis Alberto Silva and an attractive 22-year-old girl, Isolda Sommer.

They said that if their plane did not start, they would ask that another airliner be sent from Brazil. They refused to transfer to another plane here to continue their trip to Cuba. There was no air conditioning because of the mechanical failure. Meals were brought on board.

Flight engineer Silvio Eduardo de Carvalho Froes told the Brazilian embassy in Lima that if the plane could be started, the flight would continue to its next stop at Panama, where special maintenance equipment for the French-built airliner is available. From there, he said, it would continue to Cuba.

NEW BOOK'S CLAIM

Mary Jo Kopechne Drove Alone In Ted Kennedy's Car

BOSTON (AP) — A book published Friday says Mary Jo Kopechne was alone, driving Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car when it carried her to her death off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island last summer.

The book, "The Bridge at Chappaquiddick Island," by Jack Olsen, a senior editor of Time Inc., is being issued by Little Brown and Co. three days before the opening of an inquest into Miss Kopechne's death.

Olsen, who made investigations on Chappaquiddick and Martha's Vineyard after Miss Kopechne's death, says Senator Kennedy alighted from the car after a deputy sheriff approached.

The writer said Kennedy wanted to avoid embarrassment and misinterpretation of his presence with Miss Kopechne, a Washington secretary who had worked for his brother, the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.).

Senator Kennedy was not immediately available for comment on the Olsen book, accounts of which were published in Boston newspapers.

"It would have been a very logical step," Olsen wrote, "for Kennedy to stop the car between the high walls of underbrush, jump out and tell Mary Jo to circle back and pick him up in a few minutes if the policeman did not give chase."

"It does not take the imagination of a dime novelist to see Mary Jo Kopechne at the wheel of the car, struggling to control two tons of equipment on a strange road while her own adrenalin flowed at high pressure."

"She might not have taken time to readjust the seat so that her feet could reach the pedals comfortably. At the moment, she was exactly one foot shorter than Kennedy; her own car was a Volkswagen, about half the size of an Oldsmobile 88; and most of her driving had been done on city streets."

COULDN'T SEE Olsen theorized that the girl, barely able to see the dashboard, would have been unable to see that the hump-backed bridge veered to the left as she approached and would have continued on a straight line off into the water.

CENSORSHIP LIFTED:

...And Sex Crimes Diminish

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Police today reported a whopping 31-per-cent decline in the number of sexual offences in Metropolitan Copenhagen in 1969—the year all restrictions on pornography in Denmark were lifted.

The trend was even more marked at Aarhus, Jutland, Denmark's second city, where police reported a 50-per-cent decline.

Even so, experts remained reluctant to draw any firm conclusions pending the results of a scientific analysis now under way at the request of, among others, the United States Congress.

Refusing to interpret the reduction of sexual offences reported as a direct benefit of free access for adult Danes to written or pictorial pornography, police spokesmen indicated one explanation may be that Danes simply changed their views on what constitutes a sexual offence.

Inspector Almasen Andersen in Copenhagen said the liberal legislation may have brought more tolerant attitudes among Danes generally.

"Maybe they simply fail to report some offences which they would previously have reported more strongly against," he suggested.

One who was not inclined to credit unrestricted pornography with the decline in sexual crimes was Justice Minister Knud Thustrup, a conservative who last year became the father of the world's most liberal pornography legislation. "I never believed in these

U.S. Troops Suffer Heavily In Savage Attack By Viet Cong

SAIGON (CP) — Troops suffered their heaviest casualties in seven weeks Friday night during a Viet Cong attack on a camp in the foothills of Quang Ngai province, the U.S. command said today.

Seven Americans were killed and 12 others were wounded in the four-hour battle, 312 miles northeast of Saigon, a command spokesman said.

The attack began shortly before midnight with a barrage of about 60 mortar shells followed by heavy small-arms and automatic-weapons fire against a night bivouac set up by a U.S. patrol.

The Americans retaliated with artillery and helicopter strikes. The assault force failed to breach the camp's defences and faded away into the hills before dawn, leaving behind 29 dead and nine weapons, the spokesman said.

U.S. B-52 bombers resumed their raids at the end of the New Year truce Friday, striking seven times at targets near the Cambodian border in Tay Ninh province.

The U.S. command reported two strikes near the valley within four miles of the Laotian border, and a third this morning 88 miles north of the capital.

South Vietnamese military headquarters said four shells in a Viet Cong mortar attack hit a civilian hospital in the provincial capital of My Tho, 34 miles southwest of Saigon. Three civilians were reported killed and 17 wounded.

Expelled Israeli Diplomat Has Had A Fabled Career

PARIS (AP) — Israeli Admiral Mordchaï Limon, ordered out of France for his part in the gunboat affair, is a fabled figure who in the last nine years led a military purchase mission in Europe for the Israeli embassy in Paris.

Limon, 45, was an unobtrusive diplomat, especially since the French government imposed an embargo on arms to Israel after the June, 1967, Israeli-Arab war. He was listed only as a "counsellor" on the official diplomats books.

Limon became a hero in his country when he commanded various ships, particularly the Exodush, which broke the British blockade of Palestine after the Second World War.

Limon was born in Palestine where his parents had arrived from Poland in 1924. He started his navy career in the Palmach sea commandos, which were part of the Haganah, the secret army which the Jews formed in Palestine during the British mandate.

JOINED ROYAL NAVY

He left for England and entered the Royal Navy shortly before the Second World War, and afterward as a merchant navy officer he piloted Jewish refugees to their new homeland.

He later went to New York to study at Columbia University, then returned to Israel and became the chief of its navy in 1950. From 1956 to 1960, he headed an economy planning group at the Israeli defence ministry.

Man Follows Guru To Death

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — A man threw himself on the funeral pyre of his guru (teacher) at a Sikh temple here and was burned to death before the horrified gaze of 25,000 mourners.

Among those watching were his wife and six children. A Delhi magistrate has opened an inquiry into the tragedy during the funeral Friday of a venerated Sikh spiritual leader, Sant Sujah Singh.

As the flames rose from the sandalwood pyre, Sangat Singh, a 45-year-old junk dealer who was a close disciple, suddenly handed his wallet and shawl to a bystander and jumped into the fire.

Several people tried to pull him off the pyre as his clothes were burning, but he clung to a log and to the body of his teacher as the flames, fanned by a strong wind, drove the would-be rescuers back.

For The Record There Is A Gap

There is a generation gap, as any teen-ager knows and you don't have to look far for proof. If you are over 30 you are automatically in the "then" generation, as far as the younger set is concerned.

Let a couple of teen-agers look through your record collection some time to find out how out-of-date you are. If you are one of the "young-old people," in your early 30s, you might have a couple of records the teens can tolerate. Something like The Association or the 5th Dimension; nothing too wild, but at least they'll listen.

Tom Jones and Dean Martin indicates your wife does some of the record selecting, but Trini Lopez gives you a couple of marks. You might be surprised to learn some teen-agers actually know who Sergio Mendes is and the Tijuana Brass apparently appeal to all ages.

But let them into your "older" records and the humorous comments start to fly. "The NORAD Band," they say with amazement.

You mention meekly that the NORAD Band was here for the 1969 Regatta and you got the record free. You don't admit to having played it more than once. Frank Sinatra (yes he is related to Nancy) doesn't date you as much as you feared; some teens actually think "the old man" can sing, although he'll never be as popular as Engelbert Humperdinck.

"Would you like to compare gold record awards?" You offer to play some old 45s and the teen-agers say okay, since they didn't come on the market until after 1960. They are amazed to see Elvis P's Heartbreak Hotel (1954) on a 45.

Then the fun really starts. They spot a 10-inch Glen Miller LP and ask, quite seriously, "Where do you keep your 78s."

You refuse to admit you have any; luckily they are packed away in a trunk, but you suggest they will soon be collectors' items, worth much money, but this doesn't impress the teen-agers, who are curiously examining a Benny Goodman album cover.

Imagine what this session would have been like for someone in their 40s, or 50s or older.

No Problems With 'Flu Here

This is the time of year for colds, coughs and flu. This time last year Hong Kong 'flu swept into the area, and before it finally left, probably more than half the population in the area had suffered.

At the moment there are no signs that a 'flu epidemic has started in this region. There are always a few scattered cases, but nothing on the same scale, or anything approaching the number of people suffering from the influenza that has claimed the lives of thousands in New Guinea and Italy, and hundreds more in Great Britain and the European countries.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical health officer for the South Okanagan said the health unit is prepared to receive different 'flu samples to be sent on to Vancouver for analysis, so a new variety, that people in the area have no immunity to, could be recognized and dealt with accordingly.

There have been some cases of 'flu on the East Coast, but the rest of Canada is, as yet, untouched. Dr. Clarke said "The best way to avoid an epidemic or the spread of 'flu, is by encouraging those who feel ill to stay away from others and get to bed. People who see anyone at the office who looks ill, should avoid him."

Winter Tires And Chains Best On B.C.'s Roads Today

The highways department reports all main highways have been cleared following the overnight snowfall which dumped from two to three inches of the white stuff in this area.

Licences Available Monday

Monday is 1970 licence plate buying time again, although motorists officially have until the end of February to purchase the vehicular tags that incorporate several new features this year.

Besides having number-preciding initials, the new non-commercial city and district plates have sticker type date designators which can be renewed next year by the simple process of replacement with 1971 decals. About 21,000 plates will be distributed to local motorists by the deadline date, apart from 4,400 commercial and 850 farm tags. A new ruling this year also forbids the use of special numerals on individual registrations as well as the banning of suggestive or word combination number preceding initials such as sex, rye or gin.

Three inches of new snow is reported in the Fraser Canyon, where plowing and sanding operations are in progress. Winter tires or carry chains are recommended. Some slippery sections prevail on the Cache Creek/Kamloops region, where sanding operations have reduced the hazard; winter tires suggested.

One inch of new snow has fallen in the Rogers Pass and plowing and sanding operations are in progress; use winter tires and carry chains. The same driving conditions apply to Allison Pass, where compact snow is being sanded. In the Princeton-Penticton area, two inches of new snow is reported and plowing and sanding operations prevail; use winter tires and carry chains recommended. Between three-quarters and two inches of snow has been cleared by plowing and sanding operations on Highway 97, where winter tires are suggested.

The highway department reports two or three inches of new snow on Highway 33, also cleared by plowing and sanding operations. Winter tires and carry chains suggested. Some compact snow exists on the Monashee, where sanding operations have reduced the hazard. Winter tires and carry chains recommended.

SEEN and HEARD

Water doesn't flow uphill; you can't push a rope—to these cynical "first principles" of engineering should have been added for two city workmen this week that a tightened chain produces slack. The two set to work at the Memorial Arena to tighten a chain that was drooping sadly. After working their way around the building from pole to pole and bringing the links taut, the workmen discovered about five unnecessary feet of chain hanging between the last two poles. After pondering this for a bit, the two went away, presumably wondering how to fold a chain.

There hasn't been much snow in the area so far this winter season, but people appeared ready for the white stuff today. Many residents had their lawns cleared before 8:30 a.m. and both city and department of highways crews did a good early job on main streets and roads.

Many Kelowna people are familiar with the large gaggle of Canada Geese which winters in the South Okanagan, Duck Lake area. But have they ever wondered what happens to the birds on a snowy day like today? There was only a single honker in the air early today, flying in slow circles, wondering what happened to the feeding ground. It's enough to drive a person (or a bird) south for the winter.

Some shipping firm approached the bounds of cruelty today by sending a truck through the city with a load of boat hulls. Kelowna residents were shocked recovering from the shock of awaking to several inches of new snow. The truck-load of eight fibreglass boat hulls brought nostalgic pangs for those far-off sunny days when the craft will again be of use.

New Year's festivities carry their own particular hazard, most of which can be cured by the application of various medicines. One unforeseen catastrophe which occurred to a Kelowna man was a little harder to take than the conventional flu usually accompanying the festive season. His sink plugged after a huge New Year's dinner, and he was forced to carry a mountain of dirty dishes and cutlery up two flights of stairs to clean up the repast residue. Next year . . . paper plates.

Overheard Friday from two students pondering the finish of Christmas holidays Monday: "Gee, I can hardly wait until Easter."

It is interesting how far teen-agers will go to get the selective entertainment they want. More than 250 teen-agers drove, or hitch-hiked to Last Mountain to hear Nigel B. Blagbourne and his group.

A FINE NEW YEAR'S FEAST

Carving for fellowship is Fred Campbell, right, past president of the Kelowna Club, who did the culinary honors at the organization's annual New Year's Day at home reception on Leon Avenue. Being served her portion of the festive fare is guest Mrs. D. A. Hindle, who was among about 200 people attending the function highlighted by various ceremonial features including the piper serenading of James Arthur. Other members attending included Dr. Mel Butler, Stuart Walker and James Stewart.

Ban Use Of DDT Cov's To Be Told

The war against DDT is increasing in intensity and has moved into the Okanagan.

Fruit growers from around the province will ask the provincial government this month to completely ban the pesticide from use in B.C. The ban is being sought by the Okanagan Mission-Kelowna Local of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association at that group's 81st annual convention in Vernon Jan. 20 to 22.

The delegates to debate the controversial chemical will represent more than 3,300 fruit growers in the province, most of whom have already cut down or completely quit use of DDT. The resolution asking for total and unconditional ban on the use of DDT claims "health benefits of fruit are being diminished now that consumers are aware of the disastrous properties of DDT."

UNPOPULAR. Rapidly becoming one of the most unpopular substances on the continent, the chemical poison has become associated with rapidly increasing pollution and ecological destruction.

Used to kill insect crop ravagers, DDT (which stands for dichloro - diphenyl - trichloro - methane) is cheap, effective and easy to manufacture.

It is, however, too much of a good thing and remains in the environment as a poison long after its original function has been served. From here it is picked up by other life forms, especially fish when the chemical is washed by run-off into a watershed.

STEF BEHIND. The Okanagan is already a step behind Washington State, which has imposed a restricted use order on the pesticide.

The Okanagan is already one step behind Washington State, which declared Monday it would restrict the use of the chemical by June 30. Ontario has taken the same step.

Donald W. Moos, Washington State Agriculture director, said DDT will be prohibited for use in home gardens, shade trees, mosquito control or crop dusting. Spraying of field crops, orchards and timber with water or oil-based sprays (less likely to be spread by wind) will be allowed to continue.

But farmers in both Washington and B.C. are concerned this ban may not go far enough.

NOT RECOMMENDED. Dr. Harold Madsen, head of the entomology division at the Trout Creek Research Station, claims the department of agriculture is not recommending DDT for use on tree fruits or vegetable crops.

"DDT has been dropped out of the tree fruit calendar for next year," he said. Orchardists are provided with a detailed schedule of pesticide control measures each year by the department.

There is still nothing to prevent farmers from buying, or using, the poison. Dr. Madsen believes DDT can be kept for use in specific cases; he said local methods of using DDT are "still safer than Washington's."

Another concern in the Okanagan is the possible effect of DDT on human life. A Valley-wide survey is in the first phases to determine the amount of DDT present in mothers' milk.

SPOT CHECK. The survey came about after a spot check by a UBC researcher found "unacceptable" levels of the chemical in human milk.

Doctors and hospitals in the Valley will be asked to collect samples of milk for testing by the health units. Meanwhile, many orchardists are worried not only about the actual dangers of DDT, but the drop in consumption of fruit as a backlash from the DDT "scare."

W. O. June, past chairman of the board of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. and a Valley orchardist, said he felt if orchardists showed both the public and the government they did not intend to use DDT, then some firm action might be taken.

"I don't use it now, and I don't intend to use it ever again, whether it's banned or not," he said. He said many other substitutes on the market make use of DDT completely unnecessary.

One such chemical Mr. June cited is called Guthion, a pesticide similar to DDT but not nearly as persistent. DDT was introduced into the Okanagan after the Second World War and was used extensively until about 1960. Most growers now use other, shorter-term pesticides, and the federal agriculture research station at Summerland has had recent successes in non-chemical control of pests.

One of these methods, used to reduce the harmful codling moth, has been successful in controlling mosquitoes. Male codling moths are sterilized, then released live into an orchard area. They mate with the untreated females but produce no offspring thus reducing the population.

$200 FINE. A Kelowna man was fined $200 when he pleaded guilty today before Judge R. J. S. Moir to a charge of impaired driving. William How, who was charged under the new breathalyzer laws in the Criminal Code, also had his licence suspended for two months.

ONE CAMPUS

ORC Proposal Not Popular

Okanagan Regional College will not scrap the multi-campus concept in favor of a "one roof in Vernon" plan proposed by Penticton Ald. F. W. Laird.

College council chairman C. L. Finch said ORC could not fulfill its purpose of service to an area if confined to one major campus for the college district.

Ald. Laird raised the suggestion in the wake of recent federal government announcement the Vernon Squadron of the B.C. Dragons would be disbanded.

He said if Ottawa released one half the army camp it would provide excellent facilities for a college.

"The college could all be under one roof. It would take away a great deal of criticism of the multi-campus structure," Ald. Laird said.

TWO BENEFITS. The alderman suggested utilization of the base as a central campus would have twofold benefits.

The campus, he said, would provide a "better atmosphere" for students and answer capital cost problems. He contended more students would be brought together to exchange viewpoints and backgrounds.

The original plan for ORC was a central campus scheme, abandoned after defeat of the college capital funds referendum in 1966.

The current college structure is a tri-campus system with centres in Vernon, Kelowna and Salmon Arm.

Kelowna, the largest centre, utilizes leased portable quarters, Vernon, part of the old army base and Salmon Arm, secondary school facilities.

FOURTH CAMPUS. A college council site committee has carried out research to find a suitable location for a fourth campus to serve the South Okanagan. Osoyoos has been suggested as a probable area.

Chairman Finch said the purpose of ORC was to serve adults, as well as youth, throughout the college district without disrupting their normal lives.

He said a single campus, as well as a multi-campus system, has an intention of foregoing the multi-campus system in favor of a centralized system.

Dr. Rowland Grant, college principal, said a centralized campus would "wipe-out" half the benefits provided under the current system.

He said operation of the college is as central as possible now and population density does not warrant only one campus.

NOT AVAILABLE. The college has approached the federal government several times attempting to obtain the leased army quarters on a permanent basis, but latest information indicated it would not be available in the foreseeable future.

Chairman Finch admitted one main campus would have to be established somewhere in the system to provide certain education facilities, particularly vocational, required in a regional college.

He added, however, the council is "quite happy" with the current arrangement and because Penticton turned down its second opportunity to enter ORC it was "one of their concern."

Ald. Laird, who said he was just "throwing the idea out" for reaction, suggested if the multi-campus complex was to be maintained, Vernon could be the main campus and others satellites.

He said the north Okanagan city was in an "admirable situation."

Southern College Site Choice Only 'Speculation' So Far

Selection of a site for a south Okanagan campus of Okanagan Regional College is "just a lot of speculation," Dr. Rowland Grant, principal, said today.

Commenting on a recommendation from the college's site committee, Dr. Grant said the body is still surveying general areas and is nowhere near picking an actual site.

First Babies Have Names

Kelowna's New Year's twins have names. The baby boy and girl born at 12:25 a.m. Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Manuel da Silva are to be called Antonio and Lorinda.

The twins, who are Mr. and Mrs. da Silva's fifth and sixth children, weighed in at five pounds, 10 ounces for Antonio and four pounds, 10 ounces for Lorinda.

A little girl who might have been the New Year's baby but for 12 hours was the only other arrival at Kelowna General Hospital on the first day of 1970.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Gabauer she weighed seven pounds, 14 ounces and entered the world at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Elks Club Aids Needy

Santa Claus came in the form of the Kelowna Elks Club Dec. 23 to 45 city families who opened their doors to find Christmas hamper stuffed with Yuletide goodies, including toys supplied by the Kelowna Fire Brigade.

The annual hamper distribution was performed by club members Ted Thirburn, exalted ruler; Alex Gorgely, past exalted ruler; Ben Bennett, Jack Krimmer, Walter Federchuck, Ray Downing, Em m i r i c k Schwartz, Emile Bouchard and Gerry Dore. The club ushered in 1970 with its traditional New Year's Eve dance at the Elks headquarters, 3009 Pandosy St., attended by about 75 members and guests.

SNOW re-appeared in the area just in time to save winter sports enthusiasts from ruining their skis any more on rocky snow slopes. More snow is expected Sunday, although the weather will be generally colder. Winds should be light and temperatures are expected at 28 and 20. Friday had temperatures of 30 and 25, with nearly three inches of snowfall.

Realty Men Meet Jan. 26

Salesmen members of the Okanagan Mainline Real Estate Board will meet in Vernon Jan. 26 for the annual meeting of their division.

More than 300 salesmen from Osoyoos to Kamloops comprise the division. Chairman is Doug Sundry of Salmon Arm. He is the representative of the division on the Okanagan Mainline Real Estate Board of directors. The salesmen will hear a talk by chartered accountant Sigmund S. Schubert on the effects anticipated in the government white paper on taxation as related to real estate sales.

Also on the agenda is the annual election of officers. The annual meeting of the Okanagan Mainline Real Estate Board will also take place in Vernon Feb. 20. In previous years, both meetings have been held on the same day. R. R. (Bob) Neil of Vernon is president and chairman of the board.

MD Campaign Results Good

A 15-man committee of the Kelowna Fire Brigade which has been conducting its annual Muscular Dystrophy campaign is all smiles, coming "pretty close" to the objective of $500.

"We're quite pleased," said campaign chairman Bill Horkoff today, who reports campaign returns of $471 toward the cause from public and private donations. The campaign began Nov. 1, with distribution of about 100 canisters throughout the city, with final collection day extended to Dec. 20.

In its gratitude, the committee thanks all donors who contributed to the worthy cause, as well as co-operative businessmen for use of their premises as collection points during the campaign.

Shoplifting Penalty $600

Three charges of shoplifting resulted in a total of $600 in fines being imposed on an East Kelowna man in afternoon court Friday.

Benjamin Bouschee was ordered to pay the fines forthwith or face a three month jail sentence in default.

Police said Bouschee stole articles valued at about $10 from three separate stores Friday. He was apprehended by store employees.

Icy Road Gets Blame

Icy road conditions are blamed for a single car accident on Highway 97 South early today which demolished a small car and caused some minor injuries.

Police said a vehicle driven by Douglas McIntosh, Saucier Avenue, apparently went out of control and left the road near Stevens Road about 1:20 p.m. No one was admitted to hospital as a result of the mishap.

PLEASED TO BE ABLE TO BRIGHTEN COMMUNITY

Happy winners of the Kelowna Junior Chamber of Commerce - sponsored annual Christmas light-up contest are Mr. and Mrs. Barry Burns,

ground, manager of the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce, looks on approvingly. Extreme right is Colin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burns. In addition to the trophy for best over-all display, the couple also won the $50 first place in the most attractive category. —(Courier Photo)

Just A Few Simple Rules Would Bring Peace In '70

1969 has come and gone. Its opportunities are forever denied to us. Some have come through the year with fond memories of joyous times, and unforgettable experiences. Others bear the battle scars of testings, trials, and unpleasant encounters with opposing forces. Some will be able to say with the old Apostle, "I have finished my course, I have kept the Faith; Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." Others now look over the year with regrets, lost hopes, and the heartaches of failure.

Some will blame the Almighty for their apparent misfortune, just as some are blaming Him for the lack of "Peace on Earth, Good will to men."

Let me pose to you a question on this bright beginning of a shining new, promise-filled year with its abundant hopes and large opportunities. Is it because God just doesn't want to "get involved," or has "died" or is no longer interested in the affairs of "insignificant men" on the planet earth, that there has been so much war, starvation, bloodshed and violence among races of people. Or is it because man has alienated himself from the almighty and conveniently forgotten what He, the Almighty, has said about man's relationship with man and with God?

The one thing that man should learn from history is "that man does not learn from history." For thousands of years man has tried on his own to make the world a peaceful and pleasant place to live, and has succeeded in failing on every attempt. He will try again in 1970 and as long as he has the opportunity, but will he ever succeed?

There is a perfect remedy that we men usually forget, and it does not take pages and pages of manuscript to record: It can be summed up in just two or three lines. Jesus said it 1900 years ago in words as simple as this: "Thou shalt Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and will all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength—and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Mark 12:30-31. If every man would abide by such a rule, short and simple as it is, would 1970 not be the best year the world has ever seen?

—Rev. Daniel Friesen, Pentecostal Church, Rutland.

Two - Language Units

(Calgary Herald)

Impairment in the effectiveness of the nation's armed forces could be the only result of any attempt to break them into two linguistic components.

The Bilingual, Bicultural Commission in its latest report, however, suggests that such an attempt should be made. It proposes turning Canada's air and ground units in mobile command into two halves, one English-speaking, the other French-speaking. There would be special "rules and patterns" of bilingual communication within mobile command. And there would be French-language units along the chain of command up to and including headquarters in Ottawa.

The result would be Canada having two military forces in being, based neither on population equality nor on military practicability.

It needs little imagination to suppose what would happen if, in a battle, the bilingual representative on a ship or in an airplane or in a ground combat unit were to get killed. Communication, the chain of command, would be broken right there. This is only a random example of the kind of problem which could arise.

The object in any kind of war is to win it by the most efficient means possible. It is not to fiddle around trying to decide the relative merits of one language or another, or precedence to this or that unit on cultural grounds. Which outfit would get the dirtiest jobs to do? Which one would make the best record? What nonsense.

That a language problem does exist in Canada's defence field is obvious. But that a single nation could survive with two defence forces speaking different languages, is out of all reason. If there is a road to separatism, that's it, and this at a time when unification of the armed forces has been claimed to be so all-fired important.

Long - Neglected Idea

(Victoria Times)

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization's plan to attack problems of pollution, highway accidents, hippie dropouts and men's fears of a computerized, automated society is vindication for a long-neglected Canadian idea. When the NATO charter was drawn up in 1948 Canada insisted on the inclusion of Article Two which read in part "... to promote the attainment of a higher standard of living by their peoples and to develop on corresponding lines the social and other related services of their countries."

While the Soviet Union and its allies were not invited to be part of the latest move, the Communist governments spoke of the possibility of co-operation in such matters last March in Budapest. Meetings between the Soviet Union and the United States have explored arrangements for a joint Soviet-Western research institute to study the problems of modern industrial societies. It is not known whether the United States-Soviet idea would eventually merge with the proposed NATO committee on the challenges of modern society.

There is little doubt that the Russians are facing the same problems of urbanization, crowded living conditions, rising crime and alcoholism that trouble the modern Western world. In public the Soviets claim they eliminated crime when they did away with private enterprise and "the exploitation of man." But the reactivation of the dreaded Ministry of the Interior (MVD) could indicate that all is not peaceful on the steppes. Alcoholism is an admitted Soviet problem. Authorities admit that 75 per cent of Soviet crimes are committed under the influence of alcohol. And in a nation where most property is public there is a tendency to consider everybody's property as anybody's property, according to some observers.

The whole planet has a vested interest in improving life. Tackling social problems on an international scale should provide new insights. If NATO and Warsaw Pact countries ever see their way clear to beat their swords into metaphorical plowshares many of the world's social problems may evaporate like old military alliances.

"FORT OAKINAGAN" — where Ross Cox spent the winter of 1813-14, at that time a trading post of the North-West Company.

LOOKING BACK WITH OLD STAGER

Ross Cox Takes Journey Along Mighty Columbia

(PART II)
By ART GRAY
Author of Kelowna—Tales of Bygone Days

Ross Cox gives an interesting description of life and the conditions at Astoria at the time of his arrival. It was actually more of a fort than a settlement, but included within it the semblance of a miniature town. It was located on a handsome eminence called Point George, on the north bank of the river, and commanded an extensive view of the big river. Inland it was hemmed in by thick wooded country. The river was the "highway" for all traffic from the Pacific and from the Interior.

The buildings consisted of apartments for the "proprietors"—as the head men of the fur trading companies were called, and also for the clerks. There was a capacious dining hall, extensive warehouses for trade goods and the furs, obtained in trade. There was a provision shop, a trading shop, blacksmith's forge and carpenter's workshop. The whole area was surrounded by a 45-foot high stockade, with two strong bastions placed diagonally, one facing the river, the other facing inland. These were two storey buildings, and each had a six-pounder gun mounted on the lower story. There was an "excellent kitchen garden" we are told, and a "tolerable wharf" had been built out into the river.

Native Indians crowded in and about the fort during the day, and their appearance did not unfavorably impress Cox. For he described some of them thus: "They were uncouth-looking objects, not calculated to impress us with a favorable opinion of aboriginal beauty or Indian manners."

"A few of the men were partially covered, but the greater number were unclothed, by vestments of any description. Their eyes were black, piercing and treacherous; their ears slit up and ornamented with strings of beads; the cartilage of their nostrils perforated and adorned with pieces of white shell. Their bodies were smeared with whale oil that gave them a horribly disgusting appearance." The women were even worse, by his description, which is brutally frank. "They exhibited loose hanging breasts, dirty teeth, skin saturated with blubber, bandy legs, a waddling gait, and their only dress a kilt of cedar bark twisted into strands, providing covering only in calm weather or in a standing position. The contrast was particularly repulsive when compared with the lively eyes, handsome features, fine teeth, open countenance and graceful carriage of the Sandwich (Hawaiian) Island women we had lately left."

Turning from the unattractive human scene to the great forest surrounding the fort on the landward side, Cox described its amazement at the height and circumference of the trees. A tree immediately behind the fort measured 40 feet in circumference 10 feet above the surface of the ground, and the trunk was free of branches for a distance of 150 feet from the ground. He also took the time to visit Fort Clatsop, the wintering place of the explorers Lewis and Clark, who had spent the winter of 1805-6 there after crossing the continent by land. The logs were still standing, and names of some of the party, still legible, carved in the wood.

FOR INTERIOR

After six weeks at Astoria, Ross Cox left with a trading party for the Interior. It was quite a large group, for it included three proprietors, nine clerks, 55 Canadians, 20 Sandwich Islanders and Messrs McLellan, Crooks and R. Stuart, who, with eight men were to proceed with dispatches for St. Louis, on the Mississippi. The good ship Beaver had already confronted on its way to Canton, China. The trading party of which Ross Cox was a member travelled in bateaux and light wooden canoes. The Columbia River is a wide expanse of water for some distance inland, devoid of rapids, but as the party ascended, portages became necessary from time to time, an arduous, slow procedure. At one such stop an encounter with a rattlesnake is related by Cox.

A man named LaCourse had laid down on the ground to rest, and gone to sleep. Shortly afterwards Cox was horrified to see a rattlesnake sitting on the man's chest! A fellow French-Canadian came to the aid of LaCourse with a pole, and attempted to drive the rattler away, but only caused it to coil up and hiss, and shake its rattles. Another man, coming from behind with a forked stick, succeeded in flipping the rattler away from the sleeper, and it was instantly killed. The shout of joy from his comrades awakened the unsuspecting LaCourse from his slumber, unaware of the close call he had with death from a rattlesnake bite.

RAPID CHANGES

Over a period of a few months rapid changes took place in the situation on the Columbia. The outbreak of the War of 1812 between Great Britain and the United States began to have its effect, though news was slow in reaching the far western outpost. It was not until June 11, 1813, that two canoes and 16 men led by J. G. McTavish and Joseph LaRoque arrived from the east, arrived with the news.

The newcomers were members of the North-West Company, a Canadian fur trading company, and they had been authorized by their company to deal with the Pacific Fur Company. Ross Cox and most of the British and Canadian personnel agreed to join the Northwesters, but most of the Americans chose to return overland to St. Louis.

On the completion of the deal many changes took place, and in November, 1813, Ross Cox was sent from Astoria via the Spokan House to where he was to take over a new post, which he called "Okinagan." This was an important trading station near the junction of the Okanagan River with the Columbia. An interesting item dealing with the diet of these early traders is found in his instructions. "On your arrival you will assume the immediate management of the brigade, and everything else during the journey. Make the best of your way to Spokan House, and from there you will join Mr. McMillan at the Flat-heads. If you are reduced to eat horses, either at Spokan or farther, they ought to be the worst."

Cox, however, declared "I willfully departed from his instructions by selecting horses for the cooking kettle whose ribs were least visible." Cox spent the winter of 1813-14 at "Okinagan," near the site of the present day American town of Okanogan, Wash.

Writing from there in February, 1814, he said: "This is a horrible place. My men are half French Canadians and half Sandwich Islanders. The library is wretched, and no chance of my own books from the east until next year when the Athabasca men cross the mountains. The Indians here are the most indolent rascals I ever met. Montaigne left me on Dec. 23 to proceed to Mr. McDonald at Kamloops. On his way he was attacked by the Indians at Okanigan Lake, and robbed of a number of his horses."

My Canadians were out hunting at the period of the robbery, and my available troops consisted only of three Ojibwees (Hawilians), named Bonaparte, Washington and Caesar!

Great names! Up the snow is between two and three feet deep and my three Ojibwee hunters had a decided difference between the hypar borean weather and the pleasing sunshine of their own tropical paradise. Pool fellows!

Here I am, with a shivering guard of poor islanders; buried in snow, sipping molasses, smoking tobacco and eating horse-flesh!

It's been nearly a year since our destiny stopped being in LBJ's hands, yet watching him on television I could not help feeling the fear this man always inspired in me. The self-love, self-pity and monumental egotism were still there. The inability to tell the truth was still there. The lack of generosity, the colossal vanity, the willingness to humiliate, LBJ said in this television interview he has just given that he felt the press had been unfair to him because it disliked his manner. He demonstrated how right the press had been.

All politicians must have an enormous ego that feeds on itself and gives them the strength to endure the unpleasantness and a politician's job is mostly unpleasantness: no privacy at any time, no relaxation at any time. And for what? For the glory of office with its crushing cares? Power is grudgingly bestowed by the people: its recipient is never entirely trusted; he hardly ever is loved for what he himself sees as his best points; and at any time he can be cast out not only by the people but by his closest friends. There really is no loyalty in politics for losers. Only other losers, generally, put up a pretence of loyalty for their former chief who has lost.

Lyndon Johnson had the self-feeding ego a politician needs but he had it to such a degree that he had practiced any other profession, people might have doubted his sanity. Besides his ego, of course, he had stupendous abilities, especially the ability to work harder than almost any man.

TERRIFYING MAN

But he was a terrifying man because of his vanity and his capacity to lie to himself and others: when your finger is on the button, these are terrifying traits. He displayed them lavishly on the TV interview he gave Walter Cronkite of CBS. He had never wanted the presidency, said Johnson. I covered his 1960 campaign for the presidency and never saw any man so obsessed with desire: he wanted that job more than any other candidate wanted it. He cajoled, connived and fought for it. He debated John Kennedy in front of the Texas delegation and the Massachusetts delegation at the Democratic convention, in front of the press, and he lost those debates. I watched Johnson hating Kennedy on those occasions and the look was unmistakable. And I watched him blaming it all on his southern accent. He could not see that the other man had made the better points.

I have watched Johnson humiliate his subordinates in the presence of witnesses. I have seen him withdraw the nomination of a very good man because the man's name had been leaked to the press before Johnson announced it. He picked a worse man instead. He said over and over that he would not be the first president to allow an American defeat in war—and that, I believe, was his basic motivation in Vietnam—an almost exclusive concern for his place in history.

London Dockland May Become Park

LONDON (Reuters) — The seedy London dockland, dying from neglect as ships unload farther down the River Thames, may well have a future as a playground of parks and heath.

The Greater London Council has announced a £22,000,000 (£63,800,000) plan for a pleasure marina for yachts and motor cruisers in the already disused St. Katherine's Dock where sailing clipper once unloaded tea and wine.

The 25-acre dock which flanks the picturesque Tower Bridge wharfs, also would include a 776-bedroom hotel only a few hundred yards from the historic Tower of London which houses the Crown Jewels.

If the plans are approved by the local council and the British government, work could start in 1971 and be completed within six years.

The old dock itself would remain, providing a mooring basin for 250 boats.

One of the old warehouse blocks would accommodate a new British export centre. But most of the existing wharfs would be cleared for modern blocks of riverside apartments, theatres, restaurants and art studios.

"For too long the Thames has been little more than a neglected stretch of water," says Desmond Plummer, leader of the Greater London Council.

"What should be London's greatest asset for leisure and enjoyment has been allowed to go to waste."

The Greater London Council, which already owns St. Katherine's Dock, is negotiating with the Port of London Authority for the remainder of the 100-acre dockland soon to close. There are plans to turn some of it into riverside parkland.

CANADA'S STORY

Field Hockey Played In Ancient Times

By BOB ROWMAN

It is known that the ancient Greeks and Romans played field hockey. There is a carving in stone of six young men playing the game in 449 B.C. There is more doubt about ice hockey although it is likely that it began in Canada. The game may have been played first on the Dartmouth Lakes of Nova Scotia, or it may have started at Kingston, Ont. Soldiers at Kingston cleared the snow from an area of ice in the harbor, tied skates on their boots, and played a game on Christmas Day, 1855. They used field hockey sticks and a lacrosse ball. However, the first covered skating rink was opened at Halifax on Jan. 3, 1863, so the game was well established there by that time.

McGill University also contributed to the early development of ice hockey. Students drew up a code of rules in 1875 and also designed a puck to be used instead of a ball.

Ice hockey was very popular by 1891 and Lord Stanley, who was governor-general, was an enthusiastic supporter. He sponsored a team, and also donated the new James Stanley Cup to the best amateur team in the best team in Canada. Sir Montagu Allan donated the Allan Cup in 1911 for the best amateur club.

Also in 1911 Frank Patrick owned the first artificial ice rink in Canada at Vancouver. It cost $285,000. A few weeks later another artificial ice rink was opened at Victoria and the west coast got into professional hockey in a big way.

The National Hockey League was formed in November, 1917,

Chickens Smarter About Egg Laying

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Turkeys lay their eggs standing up. Chickens, who are smarter, squat.

The result: 20 to 30 per cent of eggs laid in a given turkey flock are cracked or badly damaged by the fall. Chickens haven't that problem.

Michigan State University poultry experts have designed a shock-absorbing rubber "carpet" to reduce the egg casualties and improve the turkey birth rate.

"The average drop is about 10 inches," Richard I. Divilbiss, MSU's agricultural research editor, says. "There's a tremendous loss of money in cracked turkey eggs every year."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GOD'S BELOVED SON
By ALFRED J. BUESCHER

In his ministry, John the Baptist urged people to repent and confess their sins for the kingdom of God was at hand. —Matthew 3:1-12.

After Jesus' baptism the Holy Spirit descended upon Him and a heavenly voice declared His pleasure in Jesus His beloved Son. —Matthew 3:13-17.

To all who questioned him, John declared himself to be only the servant and prophet of the One to come. —John 1:19-28.

He testified to what had occurred at the baptism and identified Jesus as the Lamb of God. —John 1:29-36.

Pope's Peace Campaign May Continue In 1970

VATICAN CITY (AP) — If Pope Paul's New Year plea for peace is any indication, he is likely in 1970 to continue vigorous personal gestures to help end the world's wars.

One gesture may be a symbolic "peace trip" to Hiroshima, Japan, site of the atomic bomb explosion. Or the pontiff may make new personal efforts to get Nigerians and Biafrans to the negotiating table.

In 1969, the Pope renewed his long-standing offers to help in achieving what he called "reconciliation" in Vietnam and the Middle East. His Vatican relief agency, Caritas, shipped and flew millions of dollars in medicine and supplies to the sick, the wounded and the homeless in those areas.

Pope Paul travelled for the first time to Africa, and in Uganda he met separately with Biafran and Nigerian delegates in an effort to get negotiations started again. He obtained only vague promises from both sides.

During the holiday season, Pope Paul expressed in several pessimistic speeches his frustration at not achieving results. World leaders—especially those of the major powers—bore the brunt of the blame.

These actions have led some observers to conclude that the Pope may be reverting to the role of a critical observer, rather than that of a participant in world affairs. Many, however, think he will not give up the personal diplomacy that has marked his 6½-year reign.

CONSCIENCE AND COMMENT

Texas Money Seeks Peace

By REV. K. NEILL FOSTER

H. Ross Perot, billionaire from Texas, has undertaken an unusual festive season project, attempting to deliver two chartered plane-loads of Christmas gifts and supplies to American war prisoners in Hanoi.

Though at this writing Mr. Perot continues to be frustrated by Communist intransigence, his other mercy mission met with some success. Fifty-eight wives and 94 children he had flown to Paris for a confrontation with the North Vietnamese were told that information about the prisoners would be released gradually.

Ironically, Mr. Perot had painted two of his rented birds with these hopeful messages: "Peace on Earth," and "Goodwill to Men."

All of which thrusts into bold relief a stubborn fact—though men and ministers talk of peace and goodwill, there seems to be less and less of it. Or perhaps our world village with its instant communications just tells us more. But there is no peace.

Last week we said in this space that Beate Lennion, like Mr. Perot, would fail in his quest for peace. And right now we'd like to briefly explain why.

While he lived, walked and healed, Christ was misunderstood. His compatriots steadfastly expected an earthly kingdom, though he persistently said, "My kingdom is not of this world."

It is the same today. Christ offers peace of heart, not of the world given. Still, millions cling to His words and look only for a tangible political peace now.

Granted, He will bring that one day too.

But lost in the shuffle is the beautiful personal serenity that is one of the Almighty's most gracious gifts to believing men this day. "peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Priest Civic Leader

MORINVILLE, Alta. (CP) — Father George Primeau, parish priest in the diocese of St. Paul just north of Edmonton, is probably the most outgoing and hardworking citizen in the community.

Not for him the dignity and formality of the typical clergyman. If there is a job to be done, he believes in getting in and getting it done.

All his 25 years of service have been in the St. Paul diocese, in La Corey, Mallaig, Legal and Morinville. Wherever he has been there is a lasting monument to his presence.

In 1947, the 20 families of La Corey found themselves united in voluntary effort to move a church onto a new foundation.

At the head of the work gang was Father Primeau.

He hasn't stopped stirring people up since. Under his leadership, Mallaig gained new youth groups, a park, a recreation centre with a baseball diamond, wading pool, playground, concession booths and parking lot.

The provincial agriculture department and Father Primeau organized clubs, tours and courses on farm management.

Legal was the next parish; when he left in 1966 the town had a $150,000 recreation centre that cost only a quarter of that to build.

All the labor was volunteer—and, says Walter Van de Walle, Legal's recreation director, whenever there was only one volunteer working on the project, that volunteer would be Father Primeau.

"There's no such thing as saying 'no' to father," he said. "He set the example in the community and his enthusiasm was contagious."

Father Primeau dug sewers, levelled ground, painted—whatever was needed.

Now Father Primeau is in Morinville, and he started with reforms in the city.

Morinville Mayor Art Stapleton recalled a meeting of the Board of Trade at which Father Primeau was present. "He told us this was the most 'tabling' town he had ever seen."

Now more things get acted on, Mayor Stapleton added. "In my opinion, he acts as the catalyst in the community."

Franciscans Reform Order Consult With Former Members

NEW YORK (AP) — Franciscan friars of the eastern United States have made public a wide-ranging set of reforms in their operations, including procedures for seeking to continue ties with priests who have left the order.

The plan was described as the first such formal step by a religious community to try to utilize the manpower of defecting members, and to perpetuate official links with them.

The changes, worked out during a year-long series of meetings of chapter delegates, also make room for greater theological freedom and for more latitude and flexibility in individual approaches to service.

Decision-making also was decentralized to a greater extent, giving wider prerogatives to local houses of priests. Guidelines also were set to protect personal rights in resolving disputes.

Over-all, the changes were described as opening a "20th century vision of Franciscanism" to serve new "emerging needs of the people of God."

Involved is the Roman Catholic order's Holy Name Province, which encompasses the eastern states of the U.S. With about 1,000 priests and brothers, the province is the second largest in the world, surpassed only by the Dutch province.

Rev. Finlan Kerwin, provincial superior, said the actions recognize the "vital pluralism" now existing in religious life and offer "a free choice between the newer and older approaches to life style, community and apostolic work."

He said special consideration also was given to those who have "become alienated from the church" and left the order.

"We have set up a committee of friars and lay Franciscans to find ways of extending our notion of community to include former friars in some way and provide whatever services we can," he added.

A spokesman, Rev. Giles Bello, said about 30 priests have left the order in the last three years, as part of the generally increased defections from the priesthood throughout the church.

Through consultations with them, he said, the new committee will explore means to preserve relationships with them, and to retain their skills and services, when possible, either through the Franciscans' clerical or lay branches (third order).

Worldwide, there are about 26,000 Franciscan friars, an order resulting from the innovation work of the 12th century monk, St. Francis of Assisi.

Among the new provincial directives, a section on theological freedom "acknowledges legitimate diversity of opinion on theological issues and calls for tolerance of the right of all friars to express themselves in teaching, preaching and writing within limits set by the church and pastoral prudence."

The changes also call for "flexibility in approach and freedom" in ways of carrying out work, saying these qualities are to be encouraged by each local group—"house chapter"—of members.

Father Kerwin said provincial and local governing processes also have been reorganized to stress shared authority and decision-making and full equality for brothers to participate with priests in those responsibilities.

The new guidelines emphasize new styles of work, experimentation in traditional functions and involvement in community projects on matters of peace, race relations, poverty and ecumenical co-operation with other Christians.

Adopt St. Nick—United Church

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church Observer suggests in a light-hearted editorial that Saint Nicholas, recently removed from the Roman Catholic Church's calendar of saints, might be transferred to the Protestant fold.

"We know that since the Dutch settlers brought him to the new world he has done more to spread the teaching that 'it's better to give than receive' than any churchman of the past thousand years," says the editorial in the monthly publication.

"So if some Protestant prophet wants to start a new calendar, our nomination is for Saint Nicholas, better known as Santa Claus."

SOUND IDEA
CAMBRIDGE, England (CP) — Two hundred old folk living here have been issued with shrill whistles so that they can summon help.

Precarious Life Says Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul implored Roman Catholics today not to let New Year's parties and "fantastic horoscopes" interfere with thoughts of their own mortality.

Addressing a general audience of thousands in St. Peter's Basilica, the pontiff said the carefree mood of the holiday made it difficult for men to contemplate God and the "precariousness of life."

But instead of abandoning themselves to festivities and superstition, he said, people should reflect that their very existence is "a gift from on high."

Social Action Phase 2

KELOWNA LITTLE THEATRE

1300 Block Bertram

DEAR FRIENDS:

The Salvation Army has many friends who have shared with us in the heavy but needful work that resulted in a happier Christmas for a great number of needy citizens.

Your contributions made through the kettles at the Post Office and at the Metropolitan Store, Shops Capri, or by mail, or given to one of our representatives personally, have meant that we were able to send out ample hampers for the Christmas dinner.

The firemen were our constant friends and advisers regarding rural directions and supplied ample toys to the various clubs, churches and schools for their distribution needs. Apart from the collection, repairing and classification of toys, they personally delivered a large portion of the toys in Kelowna and area.

The Elks, the Legion, the Kinsmen, the Lakeshore United Church, the Jayettes, as well as several schools, are worthy of special notice and we deeply appreciate their excellent co-operation.

To all, we wish much happiness and good health in the New Year. God bless you.

Yours sincerely,
ROBERT M. HETHERINGTON,
CAPTAIN.

HAVING HIS TROUBLES

Bobby Hull, seen here battling for the puck against New York Rangers' Ron Stewart, will be in action tonight, when the Chicago Blackhawks meet the Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto.

to, in one of six games being played in the National Hockey League. Hull, who sat out the Hawks' first 14 games of the season, because of a contract squabble, has scored 10 goals in 20 games, but has been one of Chicago's biggest disappointments this season. "I don't know whether it's up here," tapping his head, "or here," tapping his chest, "but I can't seem to get going," said Hull. "I mean, I don't know whether it's mental or physical." The Blackhawks are currently in fifth place in the league's eastern division, while the Leafs occupy sixth.

Take-Chargers Joe And Bill Key Men In NFL Title Joust

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Joe Kapp and Bill Nelsen, a pair of take-charge quarterbacks, are the key men in Sunday's National Football League title game between the favored Minnesota Vikings and Cleveland Browns. Nelsen, 28, operates out of a pocket, because damaged knees limit his range. Kapp, 31, who played eight years in the Canadian Football League with British Columbia Lions before joining the Vikings three years ago, is a blood-and-guts, rough-and-tumble warrior.

"Their styles are not similar," said Minnesota coach Bud Grant. "But they have the common ingredient of being winners."

"Nelsen doesn't go run as far as Joe but he may go to play action with his quick release."

Berni Rauter Wins Slalom

OBERSTAUFEN, West Germany (AP) — Berni Rauter of Austria today won the special slalom in the women's World Cup ski race. Unofficial tabulations credited her with runs of 44.60 and 46.41 seconds for a total of 91.01 seconds.

Second on the icy course was Isabel Mir of France with clockings of 44.36 and 47.37 seconds for an aggregate 91.63.

Thirteen of the top 15 seeded racers fell or missed gates on the treacherous second run. Among them was Kiki Citter of the United States, who led the first leg of the race with 44.12 seconds.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, Canada's top woman skier, and Miss Rauter were the only two of the top 15 competitors to finish the second leg of the 520-metre course.

Miss Clifford finished fifth with runs of 44.65-51.93-50.58 seconds after finishing sixth in the first leg.

Betsy fell near the end of the course, but quickly scrambled to her feet and finished.

Third was Francine Macchi of France with 45.91-47.84-53.78. Karin Budiger of the U.S. was fourth with 45.91-48.70-54.04.

Among casualties on the 57-gate second course were Michele Jacot of France, who leads World Cup standings with 71 points and who finished third in the first leg with 44.41.

Barbara Cochran of the U.S. fourth on the first leg with 44.43 seconds, fell near the top of the course.

PLAY ROYALS SUNDAY

Bucks' One Period Surge Not Enough In 5-4 Loss

A few inches here and a few inches there, could have given the Kelowna Buckaroos the biggest victory of the new year, but a fellow by the name of Mark Atkinson "ruled" the Kamloops Rockets outscored the Bucks 5-4 in Kelowna.

The Buckaroos, down 5-2 going into the third period, scored two goals in the final frame, and peppered 15 shots at goaltender Atkinson, but were unable to penetrate the young 16-year-old's determined stand after several golden opportunities for the equalizer.

The Buckaroos opened the scoring at 15:57 of the first period, after a long stretch of close checking hockey, when Ron Anseloff, a real "gutsy" hockey player for the Kelowna squad, stole the puck at the Kamloops blueline from a Kamloops defenceman, deked another, and then took out Atkinson.

BARRY PAIEMENT ... a pair son completing the prettiest goal of the night.

John Senkpiel tied it up with just 40 seconds left in the period, as he sidestepped a check by Kelowna defenceman Neil O'Neill and took a high wrist shot that caught the top right hand corner past goal Ken Johnson.

The big Kamloops line of Senkpiel, Oliver Steward, and Marv Ferg, struck again early in the second period, as Senkpiel got his second of the night, with Steward and Ferg assisting again.

David Mitchell got his first of two goals at 11:44 of the period, with Jerry Klinkhammer sitting out a hooking penalty, to make it 3-1.

Defenceman Barry Paiement put the Bucks back into the thick of things a minute later, as he barreled through two Rocket defencemen and went in all alone, putting a high shot past Atkinson on his stick side.

Two loose pucks in front of the Kelowna net gave Kamloops a healthy 5-2 lead, as Don Oulton picked up a Johnson rebound at 16:35, and Mitchell got his second less than a minute later.

FINE HOCKEY
In an exciting third period of hockey, the Buckaroos played probably their finest hockey of the season, as they outshot, outskated, and outchecked the fourth-place Rockets, who managed only seven shots on Kelowna goaltender Ken Johnson in the final frame.

Paiement scored an early period goal at 1:26, on a power play, when he took a high shot from the point, which deflected off a Kamloops defenceman into the net.

Kelowna's top scoring line of Cliff McKay, Bruce Wik, and Ken Phillips made a lot of hard work pay off four minutes later, as McKay converted a pass from Phillips and Wik to put the Bucks within one goal of tying the game up with 15 minutes left in the game.

Atkinson was unbeatable in the Kamloops net, stopping Larry Lenaruzzi on a clear breakaway, and getting in front of Phillips and Klinkhammer at point blank range to preserve the win for the Rockets.

Slap Shots: Ron Andruff who has to be one of the hardest workers in the club, made it pay off Friday, and his goal and exhibition leading up to it, should be taken note of by the rest of the Buckaroos ... Jerry Fiest, a member of the Kelowna Junior B hockey club, and a top candidate for the Buckaroos, put a little of his talents to use between the second and third periods of the Kelowna-Kamloops game, as he pocketed $50, putting the puck through the covered up net. Jerry may have some trouble spending it, as the holder of the lucky program was pretty Lynn Stevens of Rutland who allowed him to take the shot for her ... Good crowd support, as was displayed in the third period, can do wonders to a hockey club, so let's keep the spirit!

Wheelchair Basketballers Visit Kelowna Gym Jan. 17

A wheelchair basketball benefit game will be played in the Kelowna Secondary Schol gym Jan. 17 at 8 p.m., and will be sponsored by Kinsmen Club of Kelowna.

Wheelchair basketball was formed in British Columbia in 1950 and was the first such team in Canada. They were the forerunner of wheelchair sports as well as a focal point of the rehabilitation of paraplegic patients in B.C. The team plays in the Northwest Wheelchair Basketball Conference and last year won the league championship. The Vancouver team represented Canada at the Pan-Am Paraplegic Games in 1967, finishing second to the United States. In September of 1967, represented B.C. at the Centennial Expo Paraplegic Games.

Smokies Off On Goal Spree

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters went on their biggest scoring spree of the season to down Drumheller Miners 9-8 in an interlocking Western International Hockey League-Alberta Hockey League game Friday night.

Before 1,900 fans, Miners took a 4-3 lead in the first period, but Trail came back for a 7-6 lead in the second.

Ron Leopold, Gary Ferro and Rich Beauchamp led the Trail scoring parade with two goals each. Singles came from Don Clovechuck, Ken Koshey and Reg Chereuko.

Scoring for the miners were Bob Bartlett, Jack Brown, Don Phelps, Tony Kollman, Fred Weiss, Greg Pilling, Del Billings and Al Jills.

winning the Canadian Championship and again duplicated this feat at the National Wheelchair Games held in Edmonton. Six members of the team represented Canada at the Wheelchair Olympics in Israel.

The team plays numerous exhibition games throughout B.C. and members of the team are also involved in a wide variety of wheelchair sports, their recreations include fishing, boating, hunting, camping, bowling, and many others. All members drive their own automobiles and are both physically and financially independent citizens.

The Wheelchair Basketball Team plan on bringing two complete teams and will be wearing their Canadian track outfits. Program will include two 20 minute halves with an all-star team selected to play the Kinsmen at half time. This is quite hilarious, as non-paraplegics have a great deal of difficulty getting around in wheelchairs and fall out constantly but this is an excellent way to demonstrate the mobility and skill that a paraplegic develops. Following the half time, a slalom course will be set up giving a demonstration of the uses of wheelchairs for daily and recreational living.

The Kinsmen Mothers' March Campaign takes pride in being able to host this benefit game. All proceeds go to the Mothers' March.

Hockey Envoys Close Doors To Debate Canada's Threat

GENEVA (CP) — Delegates from five of the six countries to be represented in the 1970 world hockey championship went into secret session today to discuss Canada's threat to withdraw unless allowed the use of nine professionals.

Canada's stand had been clearly defined during a morning session of the International Ice Hockey Federation emergency meeting, convened to discuss the possibility of reversing a federation decision last July that would allow any team the use of nine professionals in the 1970 tournament.

Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, acting as spokesman for the Canadian delegation, outlined his country's stand in no uncertain terms.

"Unless we (Canada) are allowed the nine professionals we were promised by the IIHF last July, we will not participate in the 1970 tournament, nor will we play host to the 1970 tournament or send any Canadian teams for friendly tours in Europe in the future," Dawson said.

"We made an agreement in July and we expect the IIHF to honor that agreement."

DECISION HAS SUPPORT

Dawson said his decision had the backing of the Canadian government, the Canadian Olympic people and Hockey Canada, which operates the Canadian national team.

The 1970 tournament is currently scheduled for Montreal and Winnipeg next March, but Dawson said that unless the IIHF allows Canada its nine professionals, the tournament will not be played in Canada.

Immediately after Dawson's reiteration of the Canadian stand, which was announced earlier, the delegates from the five other countries involved in the tournament announced they would convene in a closed-door session to discuss the situation without Canada.

The other five countries are Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and East Germany.

The special Geneva meeting was called a few weeks ago after IIHF president J. F. Bunney Ahearne of London, England, said he had been notified by the International Olympic Committee that any team or player competing with or against professionals could be declared ineligible for Olympic competition in 1972.

The Canadian stand, as outlined by Dawson, leaves the IIHF only two avenues of action. They can uphold the July decision to allow professionals and take a chance on not being declared ineligible for the Olympics or shift the 1970 tournament to another country, and lose the Canadian participation.

If Canada withdrew from the tournament, the United States, relegated to the tournament's B Pool last year, would move up as the sixth team in the championship's A Division and the tournament probably would be moved to Stockholm.

Raiders Chiefs Meet Sunday Before Final Curtain Of AFL

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs meet Sunday in the last American Football League game in history, each team carrying one questionable element into the championship struggle for survival on the road to the Super Bowl.

The questionable elements—the game plan for the Chiefs and the condition of wide receiver Warren Wells for the Raiders—remained the focal points as the teams began the final countdown for this 60th AFL game of the junior league.

The AFL legally becomes part of the National Football League next season, ending a run that began on Sept. 9, 1960, when Denver defeated Boston 13-10 and kicked off a decade in which the new league gained equal stature with the NFL.

The exact moment of equality came on Jan. 12, 1969, when New York Jets brought the AFL's first triumph in the Super Bowl, the championship struggle between the leagues.

Winner of the Oakland-Kansas City game will advance to the Super Bowl against the victor of Sunday's NFL clash between Minnesota Vikings and Cleveland Browns.

QUESTIONS REMAIN

The major questions remaining before the game were whether Wells, who has been sidelined with a shoulder separation, could go at top speed and what offense Kansas City coach Hank Stram would throw at Oakland.

With quarterback Len Dawson still hobbled by a leg injury, Stram employed a ground-based offense the last time the clubs met. Dawson attempted only six passes as the Chiefs lost to the Raiders 10-6 in their seventh defeat in the last eight games at the hands of Oakland.

Stram has guarded closely his loss for this game but says: "We'll have a few surprises for them."

John Madden, the Raiders coach, fully anticipates that.

"They've had two weeks to prepare," said Madden. "That's the time you expect them to come up with something different."

While Stram has kept Madden guessing about his game plan, Madden has been able to keep Stram guessing about Wells.

Wells suffered the shoulder separation the last time the teams met and it was reported

When Will It Ever End... Asks Oakland Coach

By GRAHAM COX.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

When things start to go wrong for you, sometimes there seems no end to it—just ask Freddy Glover.

The Oakland Seals coach is fighting to keep his club out of the Western Division cellar in the National Hockey League and to establish a franchise in the difficult San Francisco Bay area.

So what happens?

Well, the club draws an 18-day road trip that covers both the Christmas and New Year holiday periods—no way to keep the troops happy, or their families either—and then they run into what amounts to a stone wall.

They started off with a 4-0 loss to Chicago Black Hawks on their last home date Dec. 19 and since then have managed only a win and a tie in five games.

They won't be home until Wednesday when Boston Bruins pay them a visit, but in the meantime the Seals are in Montreal against the Canadiens tonight and in New York against the Rangers Sunday.

The Rangers lead the senior Eastern Division, the Bruins are second and the Canadiens third.

COACH PHILOSOPHIC

Happily, Glover, trying hard to convince the 6,000 to 7,000 home fans the club draws as an average, is something of a philosopher.

"These trips are tough, but it's the way things work out," he said after managing a draw against the punchless Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday.

"If there is anything else on in either our area or in Los Angeles then we have long trips like this. Eastern teams just won't come all the way west for one game."

Earl Ingarfield, his ace centre, isn't so happy though, even with an assist on the Thursday goal.

"It's a heck of a note. I sent my wife and kids home to Lethbridge for Christmas and said I'd see them when we got back. "It's grim. And if you happen to be in a slump, a trip like this is even worse."

Other games tonight have the Black Hawks in Toronto, the

Hockey Players Must Age Before Being Allowed To Go

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — In case anyone is wondering why the National Hockey League isn't overrun with Czechoslovakians, the answer is simple.

"It's our national policy that no player leave his country to play professional hockey until after he is past his 30th birthday," the Czechoslovakian national team coach, Jaroslav Pitner, said Friday.

The touring Czech team had just held the Canadian national team to a 2-2 tie in an exhibition game, although they controlled the play through 40 minutes of the game after dominating the Canadian en route to a 4-0 shutout at Toronto the previous night.

The teams had earlier traded 3-2 victories at Winnipeg. The teams complete the best-of-five exhibition series at Ottawa Sunday.

Meanwhile, Canadian team manager Buck Houle confessed that his squad was being muscled around by the Czechs, who are playing their first series in Canada under rules that allow body checking all over the ice.

"A little older and a little bigger... that's what we need," said Houle. "We've tried with the younger, smaller boys and it just doesn't work. The day of the good little hockey player in this class of hockey is long gone."

HELD 2-0 LEAD

The Czechs started strong Friday night but were unable to beat goaltender Wayne Stephenson. The Canadians perked up in the second period and held a 2-0 lead on goals by Corby Adams and Billy Harris.

Then, the Czechs took over in the third period and tied the game with goals three minutes apart from Oldrich Machacek and Rudolf Farda.

Machacek's goal, a 45-foot screened shot that beat Stephenson at 11:43 of the third period, was the final goal of the game.

So overwhelming was the play of the Czechs in the final period that they outshot the Canadians 21-10 to hold a 41-33 edge over the 60 minutes.

Canucks Dump Phoenix

The high-flying Vancouver Canucks, who will be playing in the National Hockey League next season, drew an NHL-size crowd to their Western Hockey League game in Vancouver Friday night, and the 13,056 fans didn't go home disappointed.

The Canucks dumped the Phoenix Roadrunners 4-2 to pull seven points ahead of the idle Portland Buckaroos at the top of the WHL standings.

In the only other Friday game, a crowd of 6,237 at Salt Lake City watched the hometown Golden Eagles blast the Denver Spurs 5-1.

Three games are scheduled

Ted McCaskill banged in two goals and added an assist to lead the Canucks Friday night. Cleland Moron and Len Lunde added the other Vancouver goals.

Frank Hughes and Bob Charlebois scored for the fifth-place Roadrunners.

DICKINS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ellen Resda Dickins, who passed away Janu-

Two willing hands are resting.
The voice we love is still.
The one who did so much for us,
In resting at God's will.
We cannot bring the old days back,
Her smile we cannot see.
We treasure now the memory.
Of the days that used to be.
— Deeply missed by May, Wilfred and Family.

JORDE — In fond and loving memory of our beloved little daughter and sister,
Daria Jean, who passed away January

Two years today our darling was called to her eternal rest.
Gone where angels sing no sweet,
And taken when God knew best.
We miss her here so very much
Her presence often seems nigh,
But when we meet in Heaven, there will be no sad good-byes.

Bride Extends Tradition Started By Aunt In 1915

When Doreen Valerie Guest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Guest was married on Dec. 27 she carried on a family tradition started by her aunt in 1915. Doreen was the fourth bride in the family to carry the same white prayer book. Her mother also carried the same prayer book in 1940 at her wedding and again her sister in 1967. Completing the traditional 'something old' she wore her grandmother's pearl ring.

The Christmas motif used in decorations for the ceremony in First United Church, Kelowna, added charm for the service uniting Doreen and Lorne Philip Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pearson, McKinley's Landing, in marriage. Oregon grape, red and silver balls and red ribbons, candelabra and two baskets of white mums completed the decor.

Rev. R. E. H. Scales conducted the ceremony, with soloist Mrs. Flora Bergstrom of Summerland accompanied by Howard Young at the organ.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride chose a gown of misty organza featuring a semi-circle silhouette which was flower strewn with dainty organza appliques over Allecon lace. Her flowing train repeated the design. A bouffant veil was exquisitely crowned with organza apple blossoms, centred with miniature seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations.

FLOWING CHIFFON

The bridal attendants, matron of honor, Mrs. Mervin Geen, sister of the bride, Kelowna; bridesmaids Lynn Snook, Vancouver; Mrs. Allan Pearson, Kelowna and flower girl, Mya Irvine, Prince George, wore identical ensembles of poinssetta hued chiffon. The skirts fell softly from Empire bodices and they carried bouquets of snowy white mums. Their headresses were of flowers matching their gowns.

Best man was Allan Pearson, Kelowna and ushers were Clifford Rojem, also of Kelowna and Robert Irvine, Prince George. The bride's mother wore a gown of iridescent orchid brocade for receiving at the reception at the Matador. A matching hat and corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother chose a sea foam sheer dress with matching hat and also wore a white carnation corsage.

Before leaving for a honeymoon to the coast the bride donned a textured wool crepe suit in buttercup yellow with banded fox cuffs and black accessories completed her costume. The young couple will reside at Linden Court, Glenora.

MINIATURE BOUQUET

The Christmas theme was also used for the reception. A three-tiered wedding cake, made by the groom's mother, was topped with a miniature bride and groom, which was later tossed by the bride. Mervyn Geen proposed the toast to the bride and Allan Pearson did the honors for the bridesmaids. Telegrams were read from many friends and relatives.

ANN LANDERS

Coffee, Tea Or Me Is Foggy Figment

Dear Ann Landers: I am a stewardess for one of the leading commercial airlines and I'm thoroughly disgusted with the insults and abusive treatment we are expected to tolerate from the public.

Most stewards are pleasant, well trained, and they try hard to be conscientious. They are interested in the comfort, safety and well-being of the passengers. It burns me up when passengers snap their fingers and yell, "Hey waitress, how about some ice..." They treat us as if we were barmaids. I'd like to see the doll at my local pub evacuate 103 passengers in 90 seconds.

What I resent most is the completely false and highly publicized notion that every steward is shackled up with the pilot or the richest passenger in the first class section.

I am not suggesting that all stewards are vestal virgins, but if we play around half as much as people say we do we wouldn't have enough strength to hang up a coat.

The flying public can have all the coffee or tea they want, but they can't have me—or any of the 30 stewards I know personally. —Sally.

Dear Sally: As a frequent traveler, I agree that most stewards are efficient, hard-working and try hard to please the passengers. Your letter says something that needed to be said and I'm happy to print it.

Dear Ann Landers: Why did you give a nod of approval to the young bride-to-be who said, "If people can't say anything good about marriage, I wish they would keep their big mouths shut."

There are plenty of people with rotten marriages who work overtime to create a nice picture for outsiders. We lived next door to such a couple and you wouldn't believe what went

Woman Drives School Bus

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Grace Kostic is a school bus driver, a job she likens to running a restaurant crossed with a carnival.

Mrs. Kostic logs about 700 miles a week. She totes about 40 students back and forth the 26 miles between Brantford and Hamilton, with stops between. She also drives when they go on field trips.

Her passengers range in age from three up through the teens. They are students at Hillfield-Strathallen Colleges in Hamilton.

Mrs. Kostic and her husband, Edward, live in Hamilton. Her run starts in Brantford at 7:30 a.m. and ends there at 6 p.m. She says it is "a bit spooky" driving the empty bus back to Hamilton at night, but it is lively enough otherwise.

Her passengers distribute cake and candy and hot tea among themselves.

Former Model In New Career She Now Operates The Camera

TORONTO (CP) — Elena Dixon has started an exciting new career by moving from in front of the camera to behind it. The mother of four daughters aged four to eight and a former model, Mrs. Dixon took up fashion photography just to keep busy.

"It wasn't enough for me to sit around and get bored with housework and babies," she says. "Boredom is the housewife's worst enemy. Some housewives beat it by curling or playing golf. I prefer to work because it gives me a certain professional satisfaction."

Born in Russia, Mrs. Dixon emigrated with her parents to Melbourne, Australia, in 1947. She received her training as a model in Melbourne, and moved to Toronto in 1958.

She appeared in fashion shows and received television, catalog and photography bookings here.

The 29-year-old blonde married Alan Dixon in 1960 and modelled mother and baby fashions after the birth of her first child. She modelled full-time between the births of her children and continued until a year ago.

Three years ago, she also became editor of Trim, a 48-page subscription magazine which is directed to the hairdressing industry and comes out six times a year.

"It was then that I started thinking about giving up modelling," she says. "I had worked in the fashion field so long that I wanted to stay in it and my mind turned to fashion photography."

Brown Eggs Have No Status In Saskatoon; White Shells In SASKATOON (CP) — Brown eggs have no status in Saskatoon; it's the white-shelled eggs that's in.

John Paley, manager of the Star Egg Co., says it dates back to the days when people kept their own hens and sold the extra eggs. Inadequate storage facilities meant the eggs were often stale when sold.

Then one business in Saskatoon acquired proper storage facilities—and merely by chance—started selling white eggs, he said. The public in Saskatoon came to associate white eggs with freshness and brown eggs with staleness.

Star Egg now is one of Saskatoon's major suppliers of brown eggs because it takes those produced by the hens at the University of Saskatchewan poultry department.

"I have to sell them at five cents a dozen less," said Mr. Paley.

"Hens that lay brown eggs are dual-purpose," said R. D. Crawford of the university's poultry department. "They are good for both eggs and meat."

He added that there is no noticeable difference in appearance, taste or quality between brown and white eggs.

In the eastern United States and in Nova Scotia, for instance, the brown egg has class. In Halifax supermarkets, brown eggs sell for from three to five cents more.

SHE CATERS TO LEFTIES

NEW YORK (AP) — June Gittleston is building her business by catering to a neglected minority group—the 15 to 20 per cent of the population that is left-handed.

A southpaw herself, Miss Gittleston's new East Side shop offers items ranging from a left-handed moustache cup to a clock with hands that move counterclockwise.

She also stocks left-handed fishing reels, baseball gloves, tea pots, potato peelers, clothes irons and scissors, plus a record of Ravel's Piano Concerto for the Left Hand.

She even has a letter from the postmaster in Left Hand, W.Va., enclosing the local postmark and informing her that "several" of its residents are, naturally, left-handed.

Kindergartens Expect Vacancies This Coming Term

New families in Kelowna and district may not be aware of the kindergarten facilities available in this area. Due to transfers and other reasons, a number of the 14 private kindergartens serving this area will have vacancies this year.

Parents interested in these classes may obtain a listing of kindergartens from Community Information Services by dialing 762-3608 on weekdays between 9:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m.

Community Information Services, which is a member of the Central Okanagan Community Chest, has a great deal of information available to newcomers and citizens, such as boarding homes, day care centres, adoption information, recreation centres, clinics, welfare and cultural agencies in town.

If you have any questions about health, welfare or education, or activities for seniors, or need a visiting nurse service in the home, contact the information bureau.

If you have time to spare and want to become part of the community, this volunteer organization can also use more volunteers to carry out their program of information and assistance.

Moon-Oriented Says Artist

TORONTO (CP) — Two years spent in China as a child are partly responsible for a philosophy of "universal oneness" which Toronto artist Elizabeth Quan tries to evoke through her watercolours and linen banners.

Painting was an accepted part of the learning process in China, she says, and when the Toronto-born artist returned to Canada she retained her interest in painting—and in Oriental philosophy.

"We're moon-oriented. The sparseness, the simplicity of thought, the importance of natural forces—all this is something I try to put into my work."

The distillation of that philosophy always has had an effect on her watercolours, done in the Chinese brush tradition, and now affects her most recent work—linen banners.

Annual 'At Home' For Kelowna Club

Conversation and sociability were the keynotes during the annual 'at home' on New Year's Day at the Kelowna Club from 12 noon to 2:30 p.m. Some 200 members and their guests who attended the festive smorgasbord of roast beef, turkey and ham, enjoyed visiting and renewing acquaintances. A number of former Kelowna residents back home for the Yuletide season were among the guests.

Among the latter were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burkholder of California who were guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mitchell. Mr. Burkholder, who was one of the instigators of the improvement of the greens at the Kelowna Golf Course a few years ago, enjoyed renewing acquaintances with many old friends.

From Vancouver were former residents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hayman, who also enjoyed the fellowship hour. Mr. Hayman's father was for many years captain of the ferries on the Okanagan.

Another former Kelowna couple who enjoyed visiting and catching up on Kelowna news, were Sgt. and Mrs. William Carruthers, who were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hughes.

Receiving the guests were president Harold Long and Mrs. Long and incoming president Claire Irish and Mrs. Irish. Mrs. Long was charming in a white and green pant dress with a long green mod sheer scarf matching the pants and picking up the green braided trim of the tunic top. Mrs. Irish was chic in a trim black sheath accented by pearl accessories.

Matching the festive decor of the lounge were many pretty cocktail dresses and afternoon styles worn by the wives of the all male club, who were each presented with a corsage by Mr. Long.

Many winter whites predominated the scene with metallics and metallic trims adding gaiety to the holiday 'mode' worn by the women. A number of the male members were 'with it' in the fashion scene sporting lovely new colored shirts in the new pinks, yellows, golds and blues, accented by wide bold striped ties.

The billiard tables covered with snowy white cloths were laden with delectable and artistic arrangements of salads and other dishes enhancing the main meat courses. Huge baskets of snowy white mums centred the tables of food.

Carvers piped in, in Kelowna

Club tradition, by piper James Arthur Jr., of South Kelowna, were Fred Campbell, Dr. Mel Butler, Stuart Walker and James Stewart with relief carvers, Bill Coulthand, Jim Whillies and T. Pickering.

Manager of the club, Howie McIntosh, who was in charge of arrangements for the gala affair, was quite proud of the 'odorless' brandy he introduced to a number of unsuspecting guests, which appears to be the answer to the breathalyzer problem.

New members welcomed to the club recently are A. S. Walls, J. F. Stewart and J. Ross. Executive for 1970 are: president, Claire Irish; past president, Harold Long; and Tom Finkelstein, Harold Armanau, Jack Gordon, Wes Boulding, Lawrence Ashley and Ron Evans.

Arab Pinprick Grows Sharper

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Five years ago this week, four Palestinian Arab guerrillas from a refugee camp near Bethlehem rang in the new year by sneaking into Israel. Two of them blew up a water pump at El Koton, an Israeli settlement, with primitive bombs made of gunpowder and scrap iron.

The raid was a pinprick, but it was the first armed act against Israel by organized Palestinians, the start of a new Arab guerrilla movement.

At the time of that first attack, the guerrillas say, they had 82 men. Now they claim 1,700 active fighters backed up by 20,000 support personnel, including cadres, men in training and youth groups.

The commandos who organized the first raid had to raise $1,000 to buy second-hand weapons. Arab guerrilla groups received $5,600,000 in 1969, and Yasser Arafat, leader of the largest guerrilla organization, says he expects to get $19,000,000 a year from now on.

Arafat claims that 97 per cent of all Arab guerrillas are in his Palestine Liberation Organization. But another major commando group, the leftist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, remains outside Co-ordination is loose.

Arafat and other guerrilla leaders concede they have a long battle ahead, but they are unconcerned. After all, they point out, the Vietnamese have been fighting since the Second World War, and the Algerian FLN fought 13 years.

They believe Israel will weaken eventually. Then, they say, with the aid of the Arab armies, they will sweep to the Mediterranean and set up a non-denominational state in which Jew and Arab, Christian and Moslem, can live in peace.

Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party, once wrote: "Guerrillas must swim among the people like fish in the sea."

The Palestine commandos have friendly seas around their target, although the Jordanian and Lebanese governments are reluctantly co-operative and the Syrians favor guerrilla operations from somebody else's territory.

But Israeli occupation forces on the West Bank of the Jordan and in the Gaza Strip make the going there dangerous, and inside Israel there are only small puddles for the guerrillas to splash in.

ARMS SUPPLY GROWING

The guerrillas' arms supply is growing rapidly. They say they now launch 400 armed actions against Israel a month. These are mostly rocket and mortar attacks from Jordan, Syria or Lebanon, but they also include raids into Israeli-occupied territory and into Israel itself.

Arafat, a 40-year-old bachelor, is head of the Al Fatah guerrilla organization and chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, which loosely controls half a dozen resistance groups.

When he walked into the recent Arab summit conference in Rabat, Morocco, he was dressed in baggy pants, sneakers, dark glasses and a green ski jacket. But he was treated like a head of state by the other Arab potentates in their Bond Street suits, uniforms and luxurious robes.

The other leaders at the conference, unwilling to commit their own unprepared forces to an all-out war against Israel, left the field of action to Arafat, and he took the spotlight willingly.

The plump commando chief, who met the late Latin American revolutionary, Che Guevara in 1965, gives the Arab guerrilla movement a personal touch to rally around.

One problem he faces, however, is a lack of unity.

WAR OF ATTRITION

So the Palestinians' struggle is mainly a war of attrition from the outside. The Palestine commandos must snap at Israel's flanks.

The 1,400,000 persons classified as Palestine refugees in Lebanon, Jordan, Syria and the Arab territories occupied by Israel in 1967 have looked to the commandos since the humiliating Arab defeat in the six-day war.

"We depend on God and the fedayeen," one refugee said.

The commandos hand out food and medical services to the refugees and print a weekly paper for them. This year they sold Christmas cards to raise money for the cause.

They work in terrain that is large unsuitable for guerrilla war. They have no Vietnam jungles or Algerian mountains to hide in. They fight in open territory, mostly rocky hills or treeless plain.

Opening lead—ace of spades. One of the first things you learn when you start to play bridge is how to finesse. But after you've played a while you start to look for ways and means of avoiding finesse; because experience teaches you that the other methods of play available, which circumvent the risk ordinarily associated with a finesse.

Take this deal where West leads the A-3 of spades. East wins and continues with a spade, which you ruff high. You cash two rounds of trumps and three diamonds, discarding a club from dummy, but all the time you're worried about the possibility of losing two club tricks.

It would seem that you ought to finesse the queen because, if West has the king, you will be home. But when you remember that East entered the bidding and probably has the king of clubs, the outlook becomes less promising.

You start to think of ways and means of avoiding the finesse, and soon you realize that there are at least some hands East might have—that include the king of clubs—which permit you to make the contract anyhow.

For example, if East had the singleton king, you could make the hand by refusing to finesse. Or if East had the doubleton king, you could make it by playing the ace and a low club. This last idea seems feasible, but you would look terribly foolish if it turned out that West had the king.

Your best shot, to try to cover all possibilities, is to cash the ace of clubs, come back to your hand with a trump, then lead another club and play the queen, just in case West has the king.

In the actual case, the queen loses to the king, but since East has no more clubs, he is forced to return a spade, giving you a ruff and discard that makes everything come out all right.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
Sunday's aspects were in against over-enthusiasm and lack of self-control, generally. Planetary influences, however, are highly inspiring to all those with artistic leanings.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that you can accomplish a great deal along occupational lines this year—especially if you have taken advantage of all available opportunities to advance your status since Nov. 15—and continue to do so. Stars promise excellent tokens of recognition between now and April 15, in early July, throughout September, in early October and in early December.

Where monetary interests are concerned, you can look forward to excellent opportunities for increasing assets during the same January-April period mentioned above, during the last two weeks in July, between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15 and between mid-November and mid-December. Just a couple of admonitions, however: Do avoid over-spending during August and eschew all speculation in early September and early November, or you could offset gains.

In your private life, you can look forward to pleasant personal relationships for most of the year ahead. Most propitious periods for romance: The next three months, May, August and September; for travel: Mid-June, late August, early September and late December.

A child born on this day will be extremely versatile and imaginative but, though he could succeed in almost any field of his choice, must beware of building "castles in the air."

THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW
Stellar influences continue to afflict personal relationships on Monday, so go out of your way to be tactful and discreet with all. Be especially diplomatic with superiors.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If Monday is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, if you have taken the practical and vigorous steps to achieve your goals since Nov. 15, when planetary influences became most benign—and if you continue to do so—you can wind up this new year in your life in a highly satisfactory manner. The weeks between now and April 15 promise to be excellent for raising your material status—specifically, in the financial front and in your occupational concerns. Gains made during this excellent cycle should bring still further upturns later in the year: In fiscal matters, during the last two weeks of July, between mid-September and mid-October and from Nov. 15 through Dec. 15; on the job score, in early July, throughout September, in early October and, or early December.

Where your personal life is concerned, look for some lively social activities this month: April, July, August and September; exciting romantic developments during the next three months, in May, August and December. Most propitious periods for travel: Mid-June, late August, early September, late November and late December.

A child born on this day will be endowed with many talents, a gregarious personality and the face of obstacles.

Fans Scream Through Matches At Premier Boys' Club Fights

WESTBANK — The Westbank Boys' Club held their first amateur boxing match Boxing Day with a good turnout for the scrap.

The club has been in operation now for four months. There are 87 boys registered, 20 take an active part in boxing, and none have had previous experience or training before joining the club.

Considering screaming and cheering in the hall, the crowd really enjoyed the matches.

Fights were 55 pounds, up to the 100 pounds.

An added attraction was Chelso Garcia the welterweight champion of the Northwest Territories and winner in the Golden Glove Championship in Edmonton. Garcia boxed six rounds with three different boys, and one round with the director.

Trophies were presented to winners after the fight with the best sportsman trophy going to Kaldep Gidda.

The $25 grocery hamper was won by Trudy Derkson, which was drawn during the fight.

The boys will fight again in the spring — with a heavyweight fight scheduled, and it is hoped another ranking fighter on hand to give an exhibition.

It would be greatly appreciated if anyone had some recreational equipment to donate such as an old ping pong table, old darts, or a used pool table. Equipment would help the boys develop much faster, said director Bruce O'Rourke. For further information contact 8-5552.

Winners and seconds in the fights were: Sarwin Gidda won from Brian Fosbery, in the 100 pounds; Harold Verbeek, from Tom Aeron in the 75 pounds; Jordan Fenton winner from Charles Kneller, in the 100 pounds.

In the 65 pounds Harry Qualter beat Kasdep Kidda. In the 60 pounds Eddie Kawaguchi beat Marlo Verbeek and in the 70 Chris Scoan beat David Kneller.

In tag-team wrestling Sarwan Gidda and Harold Verbeek beat Francis Qualter and Normac Gidda.

New Image For Old Boys

A Gibson's Landing minister has lent support to the concept of a new and more dynamic role for the Older Boys' Parliament which ended its 39th session in Victoria Wednesday.

Rev. Jim Williamson, a member of the OBP senate, made largely of former parliamentarians and other adults associated with the organization, said changes were indeed coming.

"This is really an exciting time for these kids. Just sit in the chamber for 10 minutes and you can literally feel the excitement in the air," he said.

Sixty-five youths from 17 to 22 convened Dec. 27 and have met daily in the B.C. legislature.

The mini-parliament voted this year to become an authentic voice of youth and shed the image of a "stuffy bunch of goodie-goodies," said Ian McKenzie, 17, Duncan, minister of public relations.

To this end, delegates approved a constitution amendment which eliminates the word "Christian" from the pledge given new members who in the past have been recommended by church groups.

The aim of the amendment is to open the door wider for prospective members.
